In an emergency,

Emergencies in medical practices are rare. That is precisely what makes them challenging.

As the practice owner, you are responsible for the initial response. We help you prepare.

Small teams, limited experience with emergencies and restricted resources make a structured response difficult.

Emergency training for medical practices

When an emergency occurs in your practice, nothing is routine.

Emergency training tailored to the day-to-day running of your practice.

>> TRAIN WHERE YOU WORK! <<

When seconds count, training matters.

Realistic emergency scenarios

Emergencies in medical practices are rare. That is precisely what makes them dangerous.

As the practice owner, you are responsible for everyone who enters your practice - including someone whose condition suddenly becomes critical.

We help you prepare for that moment before it happens.

Typical emergencies in medical practices

- Cardiac arrest
- Acute breathing difficulties or an anaphylactic reaction
- Fainting in the waiting or treatment area
- Critical deterioration during treatment

What we train

No seminar room. No lecture.

We train where an emergency would actually happen: in your practice, with your team and your equipment.

Team training in your actual working environment

- Structured initial emergency care in your practice
- Assigning roles within a small team
- Communication under stress
- Safe handover to the ambulance service

How the training works

- A brief refresher on relevant emergency procedures
- Practical scenarios in your actual practice environment
- Structured debriefing: what went well and what needs to change
- Concrete actions your team can put into practice immediately

What the training delivers

☑ Greater confidence in managing emergencies
☑ Clear procedures for uncommon situations
☑ A coordinated, structured team response
☑ Less stress and uncertainty
☑ Documented continuing professional development (DFP/PFP)

Tailored to your practice and your equipment.

From a short training session to a full-day workshop, we adapt the duration and scope to your team and the day-to-day running of your practice.

A medical emergency does not happen in a seminar room.
It happens where you work.
We prepare you for it.
